Program News

Dear Alumni,
I hear from many of you that you are curious about the status of the UW-Madison PT Program's DPT degree developments; please continue to feel free to contact me any time for updates. Our Entitlement to Plan a DPT Program was approved by the Medical School and is being evaluated at the campus level. In the meantime, we applied for and received funding from campus to test our MPT graduates through the Physical Therapist Evaluation Tool (PTET) to see what courses they would need in a t-DPT program. Other updates involve the Medical School's move out of the Medical Sciences Center (MSC). Although the PT Program is remaining in the MSC, we are busy revamping our facilities and updating our equipment. As faculty enter the final phases of their doctoral work, we are trying to anticipate faculty research needs as well. Meanwhile, 39 new Class of 2006 students have begun their first semester in the Program, and the classes of 2004 and 2005 have gone out on internships.

Once the year-end chaos subsides, I try to sit back and reflect on how far we've come, and re-energize myself to continue pushing towards where we need to go. This year, it really struck me how lucky this Program is in so many ways. First of all, our location on the Madison campus provides our students with incomparable research experiences and our faculty with invaluable collaborative opportunities. The Medical School provides our students with interdisciplinary experiences and our faculty with a strong infrastructure and tremendous support. The Department of Orthopedics and Rehabilitation provides our faculty with operational assistance and a network of physicians with whom our faculty can work; our students can then learn through these partnerships. Our alumni provide us with a foundation of strength and are a constant source of unconditional support. Our faculty are dedicated to the students and are passionate about developing this program to its potential, regardless of workload costs. This commitment is clearly reflected in our graduates, whose boards pass rates are well above national and state averages, and who boast a 100% employment rate. Finally, I think about what it takes to get to that point of employment and ponder the compliments we receive from clinical instructors and employers. I realize that there is much more to this equation than academics. This year, I circulated a pad of paper in class and asked students to write down anything they were doing outside of the PT program and beyond Phi Theta activities, just so I could get a better picture of their "whole" lives. I was shocked to read the list that was returned to me! These students not only go way beyond the call of duty, but do so humbly. If I hadn't asked, I never would have learned about the choices they make outside the PT Program. Many students are PT aides and ATCs, but let me list some of the more unexpected past-times. Several students were personal care attendants or cared for children and elderly with disabilities. There was a group leader for a Team Up for Fun Camp for children with disabilities, counselors at Camp Heartland and Easter

The Class of 2004 composed a song to the tune of "The 12 days of Christmas" that described their fondest memories of PT school. The entire class sang it at the graduation banquet in May.

Professional Involvement

Jill Buelow presented a poster at the APTA Combined Sections Meeting (CSM), which she co-authored with faculty members Bill Boissonnault and Barb Morgan entitled "A Comparison of Two Strategies for Teaching Differential Diagnosis Clinical Decision-Making." The abstract has been accepted for publication in Physical Therapy.

The UW-Madison PT Program was well-represented at the WPTA Spring Conference.

Many students volunteered at the conference.

Chantel Hasman was awarded the Cris

Crivello scholarship.

Chantel was also chosen as the Outstanding PTA by the Minnesota Chapter of the APTA.

Chantel, along with

Jim Cumming, Kyla Galles and Erica Kuhns are part of the Southwest WPTA Public Relations Committee.

Trish Bartoli won Best Poster through her work with faculty member Bryan Heiderscheid.

Trish also conducted a literature review for a report by the Women's Health Section as part of an Independent Study in "Women's Health" under faculty member Jill Boissonnault.

Working with ### other Health Care Disciplines

PT students joined Medical and Occupational Therapy students in a memorial service for people who donated their bodies to the Anatomy lab, where Chantel Hasman read a poem.

Students participated in a job fair with the Physician Assistant and Nurse Practitioner programs.

Inviting others to the PT Program

Students organized a PT Open House for family, friends, future students and potential applicants.

Students organized faculty and alumni forums (thank you Kati Adkins, Class of 2000; Stephanie Erickson-Brown, Class of 2001; Jill Fons, Class of 1992; and Dave Nissenbaum, Class of 1999) to discuss life after graduation.

Fundraising

Students held one last massage fundraiser and clothing sale. At the end of spring semester, funds earned over the course of the year were donated to the American Cancer Society and the Pittsburgh-Marquette Challenge.

Students are currently fundraising for a trip to CSM in 2005. As part of these efforts, faculty member Bill Boissonnault will be offering a continuing education course entitled

"Diagnostic Imaging for Orthopaedic and Sports Physical Therapists" during the afternoon and early evening of August 30, 2004, at UW Research Park in Madison, WI.

Extracurricular Involvement in Organized Programs and Events

Mary Arena participated in the Waisman

Center MCH LEND (Maternal and Child Health Leadership Education in Neurodevelopmental and Related Disabilities) Program and gave an impressive presentation on her experience.

Shannon Lauersdorf, Angie Solberg, Drew Strope and Katie Sullivan participated in the Waisman Center Interdisciplinary Training Program in Early Childhood.

Katie Dow, Kyla Galles and Erica Kuhns participated in the AHEC Healthy Rural Seniors Program.

Rachael Pressel participated in an interdisciplinary course entitled "Health Care in Diverse Communities."

- Barbara Ellen Gerlich-Hoefeyzer Scholarship: Sarah Lindquist
- Amelia Doyan Scholarship: Christa Reabe

Faculty News

Congratulations to Bill Boissonault, who received the Orthopedic Section's prestigious Stanley Paris Award at CSM! Bill also participated in a series of presentations on "The Evidence behind Direct Access Efforts" at CSM, and was named Chair of the APTA Manual Therapy Legislative Task Force. In addition to the aforementioned poster with student Jill Buelow, Bill presented a poster entitled "Joint Manipulation Curricula in First-Professional Physical Therapy Education Programs." The co-authors on this poster were Dr. Jean Bryan and alumnus Kristi Fox (Class of 2002).

Bill was the University of Kansas' Visiting Lecturer, and he taught the Orthopedic Seminar course at the University of Tennessee-Memphis Graduate School. Bill was also invited to participate in the "APTA Consensus Meeting for Creating a Post-Professional Development Blueprint."

Bill gave a number of presentations on "Medical Screening and Diagnostic Imaging" at the New Mexico State Spring PT Conference; at t-DPT programs at St. Catherine's University in MN and Arcadia University in PA; for APTA in New York City and Baltimore; and for Affinity Health Care System physical therapists in Oshkosh, WI. Bill is also teaching "Differential Diagnosis/Medical Screening" for Marquette University's DPT Program this summer.

Jill Boissonault chaired a roundtable discussion at CSM on the Section on Women's Health (SOWH) task force's work on "Women's Health Content in Professional PT Education." The SOWH will disseminate the task force's results to all United States PT schools by the end of 2004. Jill also co-taught a three-day obstetrics course in Westchester, NY, sponsored by the SOWH, and taught a two-day obstetric musculoskeletal course at the WPTA Spring Conference.

Judy Dewane spent three weeks in Portland, Oregon working on her research practicum with Fay Horak, PT, PhD and Diane Wisely, PT, PhD, NCS, and took her doctoral qualifying exam on May 28. She continues to work with Goodwill Industries and recently gave a lifting and problem-solving inservice to job coaches. Judy is also an advisor for the Safety Assessment for Elderly (SAFE) project, which is a research study funded by the CDC addressing falls in older adults. Dr. Jane Mahoney and alumnus Terry Shea (Class of 1988) are the primary investigators on this project, which plans to involve PT students as "exercise buddies." Judy recently recertified as a Neurological Clinical Specialist (NCS). At CSM, she participated in the item writer's workshop for the Neuro Specialty Council.

Reenie Euhardy has been appointed to the American Board of Physical Therapist Specialists (ABPTS) Geriatric Specialty Council and attended the Clinical Specialist Exam validation meeting. She spoke at the CSM Geriatric Section Breakfast Meeting on "Specialty Recertification: It's Never too Early to Think About Recertification." Reenie has also been appointed to the Professional Advisory Committee of Independent Health Care, Inc. in Madison. Reenie recently presented stress reduction techniques to the AHANA (Asian/Hispanic/African American/Native American) Pre-Health Organization for students of color.

Kristi Hallisy has taken on two new roles for the Meriter Hospital/UW Health Orthopaedic PT Residency Program: Curriculum Committee member and Thoracic Unit instructor. Kristi recently presented "The DPT and Professional Development" to the WPTA's Northeast District.

Bryan Heiderscheit received a grant from the APTA Sports PT Section for a proposal entitled "Onset Timing of the Vastus Medialis and Lateralis at Different Weightbearing Knee Angles." The initial results of this study were presented in a platform session at CSM. Bryan was also re-elected to the Nominating Committee of the Sports PT Section. Bryan spoke at the Southwest District WPTA meeting on "Recent Advances in Understanding the Influence of Lower Extremity Mechanics and the Presence of Patellofemoral Pain." Additionally, he was invited to speak to the Wisconsin Track Club on "Causes, Prevention and Treatment of Running-Related Injuries." Bryan and his Runner's Clinic were featured in a May issue of Business Week magazine, as well as in an upcoming issue of Runner's World magazine. Bryan recently joined the UW Center for Rehabilitation Engineering and Assistive Technologies (CREATe).

Barb Morgan was featured in PT Magazine after receiving a four-year NIH grant to continue her work on the cardiovascular consequences of sleep apnea. Barb spoke about her research to the Department of Human Physiology at the University of Oregon in Eugene, and presented a poster entitled "Chronic Intermittent Hypoxia Attenuated Vasoconstrictor Reactivity in Rat Skeletal Muscle Resistance Arteries" at the Experimental Biology Meeting in Washington, DC. She also presented her research findings at the UW-Madison Department of Surgery Research Seminar in May. Barb was an external examiner for a Master of Science degree thesis defense in the Department of Physiology and Biophysics at the University of Calgary, Alberta, Canada. This trip also provided opportunities to work on a research project entitled "Influence of Metaboreflex-induced Sympathetic Activation on Cerebral Blood Flow" with collaborators from the University of Calgary.

Julie Sherry presented "The Role of Physical Agents in Rehabilitation" at a review symposium for pain specialization hosted by the UW Department of Orthopedics and Rehabilitation. Over 170 physicians attended this conference in preparation for the Pain Specialization Boards examination. Julie also provided an inservice on physical agents to local occupational therapists.

Congratulations to Sue Wenker, a member of our Admissions Committee, and the recipient of the APTA's Geriatric Section Clinical Educator of the Year award!

Alumni News

More Alumni Keep in Touch!

Students study the clinical education board and plan their final internships.

This year's UW-Madison PT Program Visiting Lecturer, Suzann Campbell, PT, PhD (Class of 1965), delivered a powerful speech on evidence-based practice and was a welcomed guest at many of the local pediatric facilities. Thanks Suzann!

Dan Enz (Class of 1996), was awarded the WPTA PT of the Year award. Congratulations Dan!

Watch for Jenelle Deatherage (Class of 2003) on July 18 at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Sacramento, CA. Jenelle qualified in the 1500 meter run!

Kay (Comer) Kenney (1956): Retired three years ago after working as a PT in an acute hospital setting. Enjoy playing bridge, traveling and spending time at vacation cottage in St. Germaine, WI. Three grown children, one grandson. Would love to hear from classmates.

Mark Killian (1994): After working in OP rehab at a local hospital for the last eight years, I joined Excel Rehab & Spine Center in Minoqua, WI. Excel is owned by fellow UW PT graduate Bart Hebert (1984). We're providing a wide range of services, including general orthopedics, spine care and work hardening. I continue to enjoy life in the Northwoods with my wife Diana, son Samuel (6), daughters Olivia (4), and Isabel (1).

Elizabeth (Travis) Russell (1995): Recently moved from Baltimore, MD to Chicago, IL to be closer to my parents in Wisconsin.

Sara (Mockert) Heberlein (1998): Working part-time in outpatient rehab at Watertown Memorial Hospital. Had a baby girl in October, Sidney Grace.

Stacey Place (1999): We just adopted our second child Tatianna, who is one month (2/7/04). Our son Isaiah is two years old (2/20/02). I continue to work full-time for the Birth to Three Program in Grant and Iowa counties in southwest Wisconsin.

By the time you receive this newsletter, the APTA Annual Conference and Exposition in Chicago will be over but we hope that if you attended, you were able to stop by our alumni banquet!

Seals camps, and numerous students who worked with MSCR (Madison School and Community Recreation). There were exercise instructors for older women, a women's self-defense instructor, tutors for disadvantaged college students, and reading buddies at elementary schools. There were high school swim and rugby coaches, a tennis instructor, and a hockey instructor and referee. There was a nanny, a web designer, and a business owner. There was a student health advocate at University Student Health; an exam proctor at the UW Testing and Evaluation's McBurney Center, and someone who worked with prisoners' cases at Waupan Prison. Many students worked in research facilities on campus, and a few students participated in AHEC's (Area Health Education Center) interdisciplinary case studies. There were volunteers at UW Children's Hospital, and several students were involved in church ministry outreach activities. One of the most common themes was bilingual work. A few students served as Spanish medical interpreters at Madison's South Side Clinic and as Dane County Health Check Bilingual Family Advocates. One student also participated in a Mini-Immersion in Medical Spanish Program offered through Aurora Health Care, was a bilingual Medical Assistant at Walker's Point Community Clinic in Milwaukee, and participated in a Maternal and Child Health Cultural Immersion at Centro Guadalupe in Madison.

Many students had exciting summer plans that I look forward to hearing about when they return in the fall and on which I will report in the next newsletter. I am currently working with a group of students interested in delivering physical therapy through MEDIC, a medical student community service group that provides treatment to underserved populations via select clinics in Madison. This endeavor is in line with overall efforts to integrate the health professions at the student level. Finally, we are trying to formalize a relationship with Howard University's PT Program so that students from both programs will have a chance to interact in person each year and collaborate on various projects as they matriculate through their respective programs.

I hope this newsletter finds you happy, healthy, and enjoying your summer!

Sarah Lindquist and Adam Lindsey participated in a mission trip to Chicago with an Interdisciplinary Partnership for Health Communities (IPHC) group to address "Determinants of Health and Homelessness."

Kristin Anderson was part of an Interdisciplinary Case Study Competition, held at the University of Minnesota, with MD, MD-PhD, Nursing and Pharmacy students; their team came in second place! Kristin also completed an Independent Study on "Diagnostic Imaging" with faculty member Bill Boissonault.

Fun Activities

Students found time to attend a Badger hockey game, a Brewers game, and organized a bowling event and a ping pong competition. Many of them also rallied for the Madison CrazyLegs Run and March of Dimes Walkathon. The year ended with a festive graduation bash.

Outreach

Students participated in a plethora of outreach activities over the course of the spring semester. Here are a few of the activities in which they were involved:

- "Women in Health Care" seminar with other medical disciplines, where students met with junior and senior high school girls to discuss career options in health care.
- a Polar Plunge in February, where students jumped into a partially-thawed Lake Monona to raise $700 for the Special Olympics.
- a Medical Students for Minority Concerns Health Fair.
- a trip to a wheelchair recycling center.
- a trip to a UW-Whitewater wheelchair basketball practice.

Students, family and friends enjoy the dance at the graduation banquet.
